

Asterix and the olympic games

(Jakub Pakos)

Once there was one country which still bears up against Roman's provinces and camps. It was Gallia. There lived two brave heroes Asterix and Obelix. They had to attend the olympic games in Greece. The king Jacob permitted it to all countries, to Romans too, where the Caesar with his son Brutus were the emperors. Asterix and Obelix went to Greece. The journey took for 2 days and 2 hours. How many hours did the journey take? When they came to Greece they were registering the athletes for Olympic games. A day later the sportsmen started to compete. There were: Greece, Rome, Germany, Hispania, Egypt, Vikings and Gallia. How many countries were competing? The first competition was discus throw. The first were Vikings, they threw 34 metres. The second was Asterix. Before he threw he drunk the magic beverage. He threw 103 metres and he hit the statue and broke the statue's arm. The Greece sportsmen threw 45 metres. What was the difference between the best and the worst throw? Brutus protested that Gallia was cheating. Caesar started the new game, races on the horses. The first Egypt was broke down, then Hispania, Vikings and Greece. At the end there were only three groups: Rome, Gallia and Germany. Brutus drunk the magic beverage and he won. Asterix protested that the Rome was cheating. All the people were shouting „Vivat Gallia" They got 3600 tonnes of gold from the 360 000 tonnes. How many percent is it? They lived happily ever after with their treasures.

